National Security Study Memorandum 212

TO: The Secretary of Defense
The Deputy Secretary of State
The Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: U. S. Security Assistance to the Republic of China

The President has directed a study of U. S. policy on the transfer of American military equipment to the Republic of China over the next three to five years. The study should define relevant U. S. interests and objectives, and should be based upon the following assumptions:

- That the process of normalization in U. S.- PRC relations will continue.
- That there will be no radical change in the Sino-Soviet conflict.
- That the U. S. defense commitment to the Republic of China will continue.

The issues to be examined in the study should include, but not necessarily be limited to, the following:

- The threat to the security of Taiwan over this period.
- The roles of U. S. and ROC forces in deterring and defending against a possible PRC attack on Taiwan and the Pescadores.
- In light of these roles, the principal deficiencies in ROC defensive capabilities.
- In light of these deficiencies, and taking into account the constraints posed by the continuing normalization of U. S.- PRC relations, the study should define and evaluate policy options for further transfers of U. S. military equipment to the ROC. The evaluation should include consideration of the ROC's economic and technological ability to support the acquisition and maintenance of new weapons systems, and should consider the possibility and feasibility of the ROC developing alternative sources of supply.
